

ABSTRACT

A ceramic composite material containing a ceramic substrate material, in which the at least one biological material, and at least one nanoparticulate reinforcing material are homogenously embedded, and a method for the production of the composite material are described.